All Carmel Is Asked to Attend Opening Program

A gala open house will be held at the High School Sunday afternoon and an opportunity provided Carmel citizens to see the new gymnasium, cafeteria and shop. Carmel P.-T. A. and the school board and staffs are joining to make this formal opening of the units a memorable occasion.

There will be a program starting promptly at 3 o'clock to be followed by tea. Afterwards all classrooms will be open for a tour of inspection. All Carmel is invited to attend.

The high school orchestra and the girls' trio will open the program and brief talks will be given on how the school program is be-

Dingeman Here; Gives Opinion on Farm Bloc, Peace

Al J. Dingeman, candidate for Congress from the new 11th district visited Carmel Wednesday morning, talked with the townspeople, and stopped at the Pine Cone Cymbal where he was questioned by the staff on his opinion of the farm bloc, his attitude on wages and price ceilings, and what peace terms he favored after the war is won.

"Stabilization must cover all things that go into the cost of living, and must be promptly and firmly applied if we are to avoid disasterous inflation. It won't do to stabilize farm prices alone," the candidate declared.

"No one can draw up peace terms with any accuray, or with any prospect of their being carried out at this time," he explained. "If you had been in Washington, as I have been at least twelve times during the past year, you would realize how rapidly things are changing, how impossible it is to plot the future with any assurance. We have more than enough to do to win the war at present, and I'm putting all my energy into that."

Sunday night City Attorney William Hudson at a private meeting with the city council told the members that he was resigning. No public announcement was made.

Tuesday afternoon at a secret caucus of the council, it was decided that Peter Ferrante would be Mr. Hudson's successor. We understand that Councilman Fred McIndoe opposed the appointment, recommening Argyle Campbell, but was overruled by the other members. This action was also shrouded in silence.

Wednesday at five o'clock in the afternoon, the council called a special meeting at which the appointment was made official. The public had no way of knowing what was afoot until an hour before the meeting. Three citizens appeared and one of them requested that the council postpone the action until the town would have time to be adequately informed of what the council was doing. His request was denied.

We have no quarrel with the appointment. We do question the manner in which the council arrived at it. The secrecy and haste are inexcusable. This town is not in such desperate need of an attorney that the council cannot wait a week between the resignation of one attorney and the appointment of another. A week would give ample time for the town to be informed and to express its wishes to the council.

It is not a matter of great moment, this appointment of one or another attorney to advise the city. Nor if this were an isolated case of secret caucus government, would there be cause for complaint. But this is one of a series of secret meetings that have been going on over a period of months. The matter of whether the city should or should not take over the garbage concession was thrashed out in a secret caucus not two weeks ago. Similar issues were decided in closed meetings preceding the garbage caucus.

Nor is the city council the only offender. Had not Corum Jackson, an outsider in the sacred inner circle of the sanitary board, informed us that the board election was to be held, there would have been no public notice other than a typed strip of paper tacked up on the door of the board offices which are tucked away inconspicuously on a side street. The board is not required by law to publish notices of election and it did not see fit to inform us so we could give publicity in our news columns.

The motive was obvious. If people were not informed that an election was imminent, nobody but candidates hand-picked by the board could file. That the deception seemed deliberate was demonstrated here in this office. Here on other business, the secretary of the board, when I asked him if a sanitary board election was not due, said "In APRIL some time." When I challenged the statement, he recalled suddenly that it would be held within the next TWO WEEKS. At that time the board was quietly busy filing for their own candidates.

With two city bodies offending in this manner, it would seem the town is getting more than its share.

The people of Carmel should protest, and protest angrily at the manner in which they are being shouldered out of open, democratic government.

Out Tombstones—

Hundreds of us have gone by that white tombstone row of boilers that fence traffic in the turnaround place where Ocean Avenue ends at the beach. A good many of us have shuddered but endured on the grounds that they are practical, if unbeautiful, and though we might have wished that someone had stopped their being placed there in the first place, we realized that getting them removed now they are entrenched would be a struggle with constituted authority.

But now—

It's our PATRIOTIC DUTY to remove them. They are METAL.

Those ugly things would look beautiful for the first time in their existence stacked on the C. D. salvage pile, their place at the beach occupied by a redwood fence covered with trumpet vine.

Cans Not Wanted On Salvage Pile

There is no longer a demand for tin cans from this district. Tin cans can be converted economically to scrap only at de-tinning plants and the capacity of the San Francisco plant is taxed by the cans collected in the Bay area. For this reason, starting Monday, no more tin cans will be accepted at the salvage bin at the Postoffice.

People who donate usable or valuable articles to the scrap collection should see that such articles are damaged in such a manner that they will be unsaleable, otherwise they will in all probability be sorted out by the junk dealers and sold. Before scrap goes into the steel furnaces it must be sorted into some three hundred grades and metals. If this is not done accurately the steel makers have no means of controlling the quality and type of steel. The only people who are trained and equipped to do this work are the junk dealers who are taking a most necessary and valuable part in the war effort.

An extra box will be put up by the present bins which will be for articles of SOLID brass and copper. Plated or washed articles such as curtain rods and oil cans should NOT be put in this box.

Boys Sign Up for Auxiliary Fire Fighting Unit

Seventeen high school boys signed up for duty as Auxiliary Firemen to the Carmel Fire department yesterday, only three of them veterans from last year's group.

They will turn out for drill with the regular firemen on Thursday nights, be equipped with helmets, masks, waterproof coats, and when they are sufficiently trained, go out with the fire trucks on drill night, and though they will not answer routine fire calls, they will be expected to act with the regular firemen in an emergency.

Social Problems Must Be Met in Spite of War

Council Puts on Little Drama for Bored Reporters

The City Council enacted a little drama for the benefit of two newspaper reporters and three citizens at a hastily called special meeting Wednesday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock.

The performance was not remarkable for spontaneity and sparkle since the business of the meeting had been thoroughly threshed out and voted upon already in secret session, and the so-called public meeting would have been unnecessary if it were not for a tiresome point of law that requires the council to vote in public on these matters that are so much more handily settled in private.

A letter of resignation from City Attorney Hudson was read.

The mayor then asked for suggestions for a successor to Mr. Hudson. It is a tribute to the Mayor's histrionic ability that he was able to make the request with a straight face knowing that the successor had not only been already proposed, but elected.

Councilman McCreery offered Peter Ferrante. The Councilmen, with the exception of Fred McIndoe, one by one made cooing little speeches over Mr. Ferrante. He's a member of the same firm as the resigning city attorney. It would almost be as if the town were not losing Mr. Hudson at all. Mr. Ferrante would just be carrying on since apparently the entire firm of Hudson, Martin and Ferrante and not just Mr. Hudson has been watching over the city's legal affairs like a benevolent, tri-headed St. Bernard dog.

The mayor drew a touching lit-

Hot Cargo Bill and 17 Other Measures Explained by San Francisco Lawyer at League of Women Voters Meet in Monterey

"Talk with supporters and opponents of the highly controversial Hot Cargo measure," urged Mrs. Lewellyn McMahon, San Francisco attorney, addressing the League of Women Voters' public Measures Meeting at Memory Garden Tuesday.

"But also read the definitions carefully," she added, warning that this first measure on the ballot to be voted in the November election is creating in the minds of most voters "more heat than light."

Outlining the arguments of the supporters, she said that they they felt that the hot cargo practice placed an extreme penalty on both employers and employees not concerned in the original merits of the dispute, and that this is not a time to tie up production in labor dispute.

Quoting the opposition—she said that labor has as big a stake in the war as anyone else, that they have promised not to slow up production by labor disputes, and passing this legislation at this time would be "a slap in the face" to organized labor; that labor must work as a whole, and the hot cargo bill would deprive it of its strongest weapon, the right of the stronger groups to bolster the weaker and smaller groups; finally, that the measure is a violation of the rights of freedom of speech, right of assembly, right to organize, and that while they waited for the supreme court to declare it unconstitutional bitterness would be engendered between labor and employer.

Giving the arguments for and against Measure No. 2, which provides that legislature will meet yearly in March for an uninterrupted session of sixty days instead of once every two years in February with a 30-day interval in March, that it would provide for better budgeting on a yearly basis, that the governor would be unable to limit what can be acted on as is the case of the special sessions that are now necessary, and that the sixty day limit would force the legislators to finish up the business of state with more dispatch.

Opposed to the measure are the arguments that legislative activities would be twice as bad as at present as it would occur twice as often, that the department would be hampered by a yearly budget as they would not be able to plan for more than one year at a time, that with the adjournment of legislature in April, bills wouldn't go into effect until August, and Lillian Bos Ross Speaks Here on New Book Wed.

On Wednesday, Oct. 7, Lillian Bos Ross will come down from the top of the mountain on which she is doing war duty and speak at the Village Book Shop for that is the day her novel of the Big Sur country, "The Stranger," comes out.

Mrs. Ross will be at the book shop at 2:30 o'clock and will autograph the new books as well as talk on the background from which she wrote her story. Refreshments will be served. The public is invited.

The same mail which brought copies of "The Strangers" to Edith Griffin of the book shop carried with it a letter from the publicity department of William Morrow and Company, New York, telling her about the book and California.

"The setting is the California Santa Lucia mountains," it reads, "which, dropping 5000 feet to the shoreless sea are still called locally the Big Sur country. The time is 1870 but might as easily be today because people live there now much as they did seventy odd years ago."

Dingeman for Hot Cargo Bill; Tells Carmelite

"I'm for Legislature Proposition No. 1 outlawing "hot cargo" and secondary boycots," Al J. Dingeman, non-partisan candidate for Congress, for this district told Hal Garrott who visited him at his home in Oxnard this week end.

"He believes every American should have the right to work and organize as he sees fit, but should not be forced to pay for the privilege of working on defense projects where there must be no strikes, slow downs or other interference with war production," Garrot said in reporting the conversation.

Dingeman's most recent service was the recruiting of 5000 expert mechanics and helping to ship them over seas to keep American tanks on the firing line. Since Pearl Harbor, he has been summoned to Washington ten times to consult with Leon Henderson and others about the automobile situation. He owns an automobile business which he built up "from scratch," and for twenty years has employed an average from 20 to 30 skilled workers without labor trouble. He is vice president of the National Auto Dealers' Association, chairman on military affairs for his district, Red Cross Transportation, draft board, past president of the chamber of commerce, county supervisor and a member of a number of fraternal organizations.

"Everything Dingeman does is directed toward one great purpose, the winning of the war," Garrott said in reporting his visit. "He says all military needs must be met no matter what the cost in money and sacrifice, but unnecessary agencies, bureaus and the frightful expenditures on non-essentials by the federal government must be stopped."

"Communism, socialism, dictatorship and the pink brand of new-dealism find no place in my philosophy," Dingeman said, "The battle to be won at home as well as abroad is the battle to preserve Americanism."

Adult School

Painting Class to Meet On Tuesday and Thursday

Patricia Cunningham's new painting class on Tuesday afternoon was a grand success, so much so that the class will meet on both Tuesday and Thursday afternoons hereafter. Room 15 at Sunset School is the place, and 3:30 the hour. Oil, water color, and tempera are the media. Individual instruction is combined with some group work, permitting each person to develop his own skill, whether beginner or advanced student. There are no fees — but students do furnish their own materials. The Monday and Wednesday evening life drawing classes will also continue.

Marine Trip for Marine Biologists

Irving McClurkin announces a field trip for members of his marine biology class in the Carmel Adult School, and any others who may be interested, on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 3 from four to six o'clock starting at the north gate of the Pacific Grove lighthouse reserve. The party will go out along Ocean Avenue, where the shore is said to be one of the best areas anywhere for marine life specimens. The tide will be low, making it an ideal time for this nature study trip.

Mathematics Review Offered By Carmel Adult School

A mathematics course especially planned for prospective army and navy officers and service school candidates is announced by the Carmel Adult School. The class will meet on Monday and Thursday evenings, in room three, Sunset School, beginning October 5. The instructor will be J. W. Getsinger, principal of the Carmel Adult School and a captain of field artillery during the first world war.

The course will include a review of arithmetic, geometry, algebra and trigonometry, using a new textbook recently published especially for this purpose. Students will be expected to purchase the book, but there is no other charge for the class.

Nutrition Courses Popular

Mrs. Helen Poulsen says that each meeting of her nutrition class shows an increase in enrollment and attendance. Now well along in their study of better living through vitamins, balanced diet, budget savings, and use of war time food substitutes, the class meets on Monday and Thursday mornings at Sunset School. Another series starting all over again is planned to follow in a few weeks.

and character building agencies have looked to the Chest for support. They are the Boy and Girl Scouts of Monterey and Pacific Grove, Girl Scouts of Carmel, the Army and Navy Recreation Center, the Salvation Army, the Community Center, the school milk fund, the Catholic Associated Charities.

Mr. Robert Stanton is president of the Chest which has 25 men and women from all sections of the Peninsula as Directors. The campaign committee for 1943 has Mr. Frank Shea as chairman. The Chest has been asked for $28,000 this year.

War or no war, depression or prosperity there are always social problems at home which must be met, character building for the young.

Four of the seven agencies included in the Chest devote their full attention to the welfare of children. Their individual and community health, and character building. Many of the agencies have greater loads to carry this year than ever before. The Community Center is caring to the best of its ability under difficult conditions for more children than ever before of working mothers.

Many of the former subscribers to the Community Chest are away on military duty, others working in defense areas. The Chest needs the wholehearted support of every member of the Peninsula this year more than ever.

Headquarters will be established in Carmel for the Chest on Dolores street which will open on Saturday, October 10th. According to Kit Whitman, campaign manager for the M. P. Community Chest drive, the following plans are already completed:

Monterey, Mrs. Carmel Martin, Mrs. Gordon Beall, chairman women workers. Judge Ray Baugh, chairman, men's division. Pacific Grove, Mrs. Ralph Young, chairman women's division, Judge C. Way, chairman, men's division. Mrs. Peter Hay, Del Monte chairman. Mr. Henry Potter Russell, Carmel Valley chairman, Mr. Norman Larson, Carmel Highlands, chairman, Mrs. S. S. Simonson, Monterey Peninsula County Club chairman, Mrs. H. Miller, Oakgrove chairman, P.T.A. and Business Men's Association, Seaside? Mrs. W. H. Hargrave, Pebble Beach chairman.

Over 500 letters have already been mailed to former subscribers. Your check mailed promptly to the Community Chest Headquarters, Monterey, will obviate the necessity of a personal call, which due to rubber shortage and other difficulties this year will be greatly appreciated by the Community Chest directors. —K. Council Puts on Little Drama for Bored Reporters tle picture of Mr. Hudson, serving the Navy in Washington, D.C. in constant telephone communication with his firm here and being consulted about the business of the city of Carmel—sort of a city attorney by remote control.

"Won't that be the case, Mr. Hudson?"

"No," said Mr. Hudson, who apparently didn't show up for rehearsal or perhaps he has a saving appreciation of the ridiculous.

But this upset in the routine did not disturb the sangfroid of the mayor, experienced trooper that he is. He continued with his lines as if the City Attorney had said "yes."

Another hitch in the performance occurred when Mr. A. La Frenz, one of the three citizens in the audience, requested that the council postpone action until the townspeople could find out what they were doing, and perhaps offer a suggestion of their own.

This the mayor dismissed with gentle reproof.

"These matters are the province of the council."

Councilman McIndoe's suggestion that Argyll Campbell would make a good city attorney since he was a recognized expert on municipal law, and his appointment might "right a previous wrong" (referring to an old row when another council had fired Campbell from the job of city attorney), could not be classed as a hitch in the proceedings because this had already been said and answered at the Tuesday secret meeting that means business.

The other members merely repeated the answer they had given him Tuesday. In a state of emergency Mr. Campbell's services might be required by the City Council of Monterey at the same time it was required by the City of Carmel. They did not go into what state of emergency in which a city attorney's services would be so immediately necessary. Coul dthey have been thinking of a doctor?

They had now reached their curtain lines. Before they signed the legal document making Mr. Ferrante's appointment official, they had the grace to mention that the two attorneys involved were not aware of the little drama being enacted over the appointment of one of them.

As an olio, they passed a measure empowering the superintendent of streets to fix the salary of the street department employes.

Tihs reporter, speaking with one of the councilmen after the meeting, observed that wasn't it a little out of line to give any city official the power of fixing salaries without putting some limit on how high those salaries should go.

"Oh, that's taken care of," said the Councilman. "We set a ceiling on the salaries at the meeting yesterday (the secret meeting). Guess we forgot to bring it up here." —Wilma Cook.

Mrs. Powers in Fresno

Mrs. Lucius Powers Sr. has returned to her home in Fresno after four months in Carmel. Her daughter, Mrs. A. A. Arehart of Monterey accompanied her and will remain for several days.

BOX G-1

Honorable Mayor and Members of the Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, California.

Dear sirs:

FLAMES SWEEP CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA: BEACH CITY IN RUINS, so runs the headlines.

The effect of such a disaster would be far reaching. In addition to the losses suffered by owners of properties involved, there would be a tremendous curtailment of Carmel's War Work.

Surely it is the duty of every American citizen to make it his business to do his part in the campaign against fire.

Public officials warn, that UNLESS we "get tough" we may lose this war.

O.K. let's "get tough" with ourselves, also let's "get tough" with careless persons who jeopardize the property of their neighbors and community and aid in the impoverishment of the Nation.

National Fire Prevention Week starts October 3rd. Plans are being made for Carmel's participation in this important event.

During July and August 113 Abatement notices were posted on properties where fire hazard conditions were present, these notices were in addition to numerous personal contacts, phone calls and clean-up letters mailed in the campaign to rid Carmel of fire dangers.

Never in the history of our Nation has there been so great a need for the conservation of our resources and the prevention of fire waste.

Let's do our part to stop fire.

Sincerely
Robert G. Leidig.
Fire Marshal.

To the Editor of The Pine Cone Cymbal

Let no Republican, or real Democrat be deceived by the erroneous, to put it mildly, claims of the suporters of the New Deal Candidate for Congress that he is the non-partisan Candidate.

It has become a practice for a New Dealer to file on both tickets as a means of deceiving the unthinking voter.

Mr. Outland is known to be a New Dealer and if elected, the people will have added another rubber stamp to congress.

Congress is in disrepute now in the country. The election of Mr. Outland will do nothing to relieve this lack of confidence in congress. Away with dreamers and theorists. Give us hard-headed business men instead, such as Nelson, Jeffers, Kaiser, Baruch and many others whom we might mention who have proven themselves to be men who have succeeded.

Practical business men are needed as never before in Congress. Mr. Dingeman fills the bil. Keep pinks out and put patriots on guard.

E. L. Taylor.

I shall be interested to get and print the reactions of some Outland supporters. —W. C.

LIKE ANY OTHER SOLDIER DON WANTS LETTERS

We have a letter from Don Blanding, and though it's addressed to Pine Cone Cymbal's Addie Guth, we suspect the whole town is included in the greetings and the hint we are sure will bring swift response from his Carmel friends.

Hello Folks:

Yep, it's Private Don now . . . and a tired sleepy soldier about ready to say Lights Out and Good Night.

Couldn't stay out once they raised the age of voluntary enlistment to my age. If these kids can give the precious young years of their lives and careers, I can give the scrap end of mine and call it material for the Scrap Drive. And I'm loving it. Am able to help a little extra. In addition to a full duty day I give from 3 to 5 talks to the men, gay hula stuff and feasts and hula girls and curves, etc., at the hospitals, service clubs, etc. I enjoy it a lot and the fellows forget their homesickness of these first bewildered days at Receiving Center.

Can't write much, but can read, you know, letters. Here's a little project of mine that's bringing results in a large way.

Aloha to you all. Hope the Big Assembly Line brings me out to the Coast.

Private Don.

Don's address is: Private Don B. Blanding, T-147, "I"-4, Second Receiving Co., Camp Upton, N. Y.

Volunteer Help Puts in New Sidewalk for USO

When the committee in charge of redecorating the Carmel U.S.O. inspected the old sidewalk in front of the building they found that it had disintegrated beyond repair.

Bill Booker of Carmel volunteered to lay a new cement walk.

Last Saturday morning with the assistance of R. E. Crouch, Ben Figueroa and Ernie Hill of Carmel, and Capt. Bernstein's men, Corp. Woolley, Privates Segal, Garter, Garcia, Lapps and Burke from a medical detachment, the work was started.

The soldiers helped to excavate, and ran the cement mixer, which had been loaned by Keith Evans.

By evening last Saturday a new walk was finished.

Now the yard will be landscaped for the enjoyment of the hundreds of service men who use our Carmel U.S.O.

More help is needed in buying materials which the volunteer helpers have to use in reconstruction work.

Rescued Pets Show Kind Dog Catcher Their Gratitude

Foy Glover, Carmel's kind hearted dog catcher who has adopted every homeless dog he has picked up since he became pound man several months ago, is reaping the rewards of his philanthropy.

He was just congratulating himself this week on finding homes for eight cats when Tiny, a female fox terrier which he collected in Pebble Beach, produced puppies. Whether it was an expression of gratitude and Tiny, seeing the pleasure Glover and his family took in playing with her, did it to give them more dogs to pet, or whether she just thought it would be a good joke to pile blind quintuplets on to their other canine cares, Glover is not sure. But he is devoted to all the new arrivals and so are his two small children and Mrs. Glover. And they are interested in the pups' heredity, because the father is half cocker spaniel and half chow, is, in fact, their own dog, Rexie.

Playhouse Calls On Fans to Help Keep Show Open

The Playhouse notice in this issue is of more than usual interest because of the announced possibility of eight months of "darkness" for Carmel's famous little film house. The management states that it feels unable in these trying times to hazard thousands of dollars in new film contracts covering the period between now and the next summer tourist season unless Monterey Peninsula definitely expresses a wish for a continuance of the film schedule. Several thousand circulars have been mailed to Peninsula families explaining the Playhouse problem. The deadline for response is October 10th.

The final pictures of the present season will be the following: now playing, Leslie Howard in a repeat engagement of "Mister V"; Sunday through Tuesday, the Playhouse's exclusive showing of the charming comedy, "Ball of Fire," starring Gary Cooper and Barbara Stanwyck; Wednesday and Thursday, the life story of General George A. Custer, "They Died with Their Boots On," starring Errol Flynn and Olivia de Havilland; and finally, Friday and Saturday, October 9th and 10th, the incomparable French film, "Grand Illusion," with Jean Gabin, Erich von Stroheim and Dita Parlo.

Garth Jeffers Home

Garth Jeffers has been home at Tor House for several days.

He is stationed in Hawaii where he is with the M.P. Corps.

Claramae Turner

Claramae Turner, contralto soloist of the St. John's Presbyterian Church of San Francisco, will be the artist presented this Sunday afternoon in the Hotel Del Monte Lounge. Miss Turner possesses a voice of unusual range and rich quality of tone.

Miss Turner's accompanist, Arnold Hartmann, also of San Francisco, will play a group of interesting piano selections.

This will be the Musical Art Club's initial concert of the season, the program beginning at 3 p.m. The Club is unique in the cultural life of Monterey Peninsula, its purpose being to provide a platform for artists of unusual talent who are relatively unknown by the public.

The program will generally be presented on Sunday afternoons in the lounge at Del Monte Hotel. With each three dollar membership in the club the member receives three guest tickets. Those interested in membership may apply to the president of the club, Mrs. Grace Howden, or to the membership chairman, Mr. Carl Bensberg, or to any director.

Members may pay their dues to the treasurer at the door before Sunday's concert.

Political Rally Birthday Party

The impossible has happened at last — an harmonious political meeting in individualistic Carmel. The dinner at Pine Inn Tuesday started out to be non-partisan, but the GOP, long crushed to earth, couldn't resist the chance to raise its battered head.

It was John Jordan's birthday, too, which added to the festivities. There were no candles on the cake, for John wouldn't tell his age. Some credited him with 55, others 75, for John looked and acted 55 and spoke with the sagacity of 75.

Corum Jackson returned the affair to politics. "Formerly there were mostly lawyers in Washington," said he. "They were followed by college professors and social innovaters. Now we're getting men of action, industrialists, executives, and this district hopes to send one of them to Congress." (applause) "Our man is not a talker. He's a doer."

"Won't a doer be out of place in Congress?" asked John Jordan.

"Maybe, but we've got to have 'em if we're to win the war. Talk won't do it."

Everyone knew he was speaking of Al J. Dingeman, who is running for Congress from the new eleventh district.

Ed Ewig who was temporary chairman, made an effective speech. "We are fortunate to have such candidates as Earl Warren, Hanser, Weybret and Al Dingeman. The Republican party is at last coming out of its Rip Van Winkle sleep. We must all work hard and pull together."

Andy Jacobsen outlined conditions in Monterey, Pacific Grove, Salinas and stressed the need for a united organization and precinct workers. Guy Curtis, just back from a Warren rally in San Francisco, told of the enthusiasm there. Ed Taylor recited an original poem. Then the talk drifted into a lighter vein, and the meeting adjourned.

Astrologer Here To Teach Mystic Lore Thru Voice

Robert de Bruce, singer, actor, composer, teacher and astrologer, has arrived in Camel and taken a house on Monte Verde near Santa Lucia which he is calling after one of the Pleiades, Alkyone, which means the pivot.

For several years he was a Psycho-synthetic Astrologer in Paris. He has given planetary portraits to such people as Archdukes Leopold and Franz Josef of Austria, Princesse Alexandre de Caraman - Chimay, Principessa Hercolani, and Marquis and Marquise de Portago of Spain.

"Mysticism — that vivid, exciting awareness of immanent oneness with The Ineffable One—has from his earliest years played a major role in his experience," reads de Bruce's literature. "To get this inner realism expressed in some musical dramatic form which might rouse latent or feed the awakened mysticism in others —for it is more common than most people dream—has been an almost life-long obsession."

In Carmel de Bruce plans to give a course in which he "hopes to teach everything through the psychology of the voice." He believes that voices may be so trained as to take on the color of whatever thought is in the mind.

A member of the Bohemian Club, de Bruce walked around the Seventeen Mile Drive in 1917, but he has not been in Carmel before. He composed music for several of Shakespeare's sonnets and was a member of Walter Hampden's first "Hamlet" company. He is one of Marjory Pegram's 10 brothers and sisters.

CHECK FAN BELT

On many cars the fan belt drives the generator and water pump in addition to operating the fan, thus making the belt a very important unit, according to the California State Automobile Association. If the belt starts slipping, fan speed is reduced, thereby lowering its cooling efficiency. Besides, the generator efficiency is decreased.

Big-Hearted Jim Last Performance; Month's Vacation

"Positively the last two times." "Big-Hearted Jim," which has "packed them in" at the First Theatre, Monterey, during its week end runs since August 13, plays for the last two times this Saturday and Sunday nights, October 3 and 4.

During October and the first week of November, the First Theatre will be closed for renovations and repairs. Early in November, the Troupers of the Gold Coast will open in their new play, already in rehearsal, "The Convict's Daughter," or "Jerry, the Tramp."

Bob McMenamin, son of Emmet McMenamin, Monterey's mayor, has added much to the present play. In the role of John Heulette, who tricked the lovely Dora into a mock marriage and who risks all to kidnap the Indian "White Witch," Bob has done convincing acting. His election last year to the University of California Mask and Dagger, the honor society of the drama department, is definite proof of his talent for the theatre.

Bob is in the naval reserve, but has permission to go back to the University to continue his studies until called. He leaves for Berkeley next week. In addition to his present role of Heulette, Bob has played brilliantly in "Tatters," and a number of other Gold Coast Trouper productions.

As Louise Welty's partner in the dance team of McMenamin and Welty, Bob and Louise go down in the history of riotous olio acts at the First Theatre.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK
October 4th to 10th

Every citizen will be called to take his place in the fire front during the week of October 4 to 10, which has been designated National Fire Prevention Week by official proclamation.

Although National Fire Prevention Week has been observed annually throughout our Nation in an effort to combat our tremendous peacetime fire loss, this year it has even greater importance.

Even the smallest fires starting accidentally in a private home may set the torch for a disastrous conflagration.

Now that America is both the arsenal and the bread basket of democracy the safety of every home and factory against fire is a vital part of the war effort.

Carmel's New And Old Records Wanted for USO

By JIM COOKE

The Carmel U.S.O. needs those phonograph records that you no longer have any use for—will you go up into your attic or in that window seat and weed out any records that you can spare?

They can be of any type — new, old, cracked, chipped or broken, Edison, Columbia, Victor, Decca, all makes, and yes—dictaphone records too.

They will be checked by a committee chosen by the Carmel U.S.O. and the good ones will be placed in their record library, for the soldiers to enjoy, and some will be used to dance with. The broken ones and those worn out ones will be turned in for new ones.

Many of the boys who visit the Carmel U.S.O. love to listen to a good symphony. Mrs. Hurd Comstock gave the Carmel U.S.O. some lovely albums of records. Miss Margaret Lial of the Music Shop also presented them with some beautiful albums of records.

These boys, who will be dancing to your records, will soon be on their way overseas to fight for us. So let us help them to enjoy themselves, while they are with us. They love to dance to the latest catchy tunes, and you can help them to continue getting the latest dance records, by turning in your old records.

Just phone Carmel 263 or 973, or drop a penny post card and they will be called for. Even the old fashioned cylinder records, any kind. They will all be used to help make good music for our service men.

So please let them have any phonograph records that you no longer will be using, even if you only have one or two, that have been scratched or ruined, they will all help to provide some fun for our fighting men. So let us do our part by turning them in to the Carmel U.S.O.

We cannot afford to let our troops down. They want records—they need records, so collect all your old records. This call must be treated as an S.O.S.—or perhaps, a fire alarm. This is really what one can call an emergency. Please ACT NOW! If you can not phone the above Carmel numbers, get in touch with Jim Cooke, who is a member of the American Legion, and your records will be called for.

You perhaps know, that new records can not be made unless a certain number of old ones are turned in, so let's all help.

First Woman's Club Meeting This Monday

The Rev. Leslie E. Learned of Pasadena and Carmel, retired rector of the Pasadena Episcopal Church, will speak at the first meeting of the year for the Carmel Woman's Club Monday, Oct. 5, at Hotel La Ribera.

His subject will be "Our Present Day Responsibilities."

Wednesday, Oct. 7, the War Work Section of the club will meet at the Red Cross to sew.

No Dog This Time But a Real Prowler

The perennial prowler that brings out the police force regularily each week proved actually to be a prowler this week and not the inevitable dog investigating a garbage can.

Receiving the call at 11:30 Sunday night two members of the department rushed to the scene and found a soldier wandering bemused in a front yard at 10th and Camino Real.

He was Ralph Whitesell, from Fort Ord, and he'd had a few drinks. The officers turned him over to the M.P.'s.

CABBAGES AND THINGS

By PLANTSMITH

A couple of months ago I submitted a list of names of Carmel cottages in this column and suggested in a concluding sentence that folks send in additional names. The response was surprising and indicates that this name business is of some general interest after all.

Jutting out into Lake Superior at Duluth is a long narrow strip of land called "Minnesota Point." The only access to this area is by way of the famous aerial bridge. There is no point in describing this remarkable structure in detail except to say the actual "bridge" is some fifty feet up in the air, with a suspended-by-cable platform that moves from side to side. Just like a ferry boat only it sails through the air instead of through the water. Now I'm across the bridge and can get to the point, which is the curious names found on cottages in the Minnesota Point resort. Somehow the names seemed to run to Inns. There was Knot Inn, Awl Inn, Outside Inn, Move Inn and dozens more following that pattern. I've regretted many times that I did not take paper and pencil and write down the names as I bumped along on the Toonerville Trolley that then was the only means of transportation.

Carmel cottage names are something to really stir the imagination and are a never-ending source of interest to me. In piloting guests about the town it is ostensibly for showing the informality and abandonment of big-city ways. Yes, and to show how obliging our roads are. If a tree is in the way the road very patiently moves off to one side or the other — or it may be undecided as to whether it should go on the right or the left side of the tree, in which case it compromises by going on both sides at once. That's the Carmel that meets the eye of the visitor. But I always manage to make the tour of streets that are well stocked with cunning name plates.

Since Spanish is but one of several hundred foreign languages I do not speak I have refrained from including any of the many in evidence. I could make an exception in a case or two. For instance, "Tres Pinos" couldn't mean anything but "Three Pines" in any language. Even I know that much, for "Pinos" is the same as "Pinus" which is Latin for Pine and the rest of the name is easy as "one, two, tres." What bothers me most about that name is its present status. A number of years ago three stately pine trees formed a small triangle with a "Tres Pinos" nameplate on one of them. One of the trees died and was removed. Now my curiosity has never been satisfied. Was another tree planted for the sake of status quo or was the name changed to "Dos Pinos"? (I know that means two, what with a Spanish-studying daughter practically talking Spanish in her sleep).

So I'm sticking to every-day language for the time being. I don't have to look up a dictionary to find out what "Molecule" means. It really doesn't have to mean anything to get on my list. My, my! I almost forgot that I really started out to write that list but here it is at last:

If So, Why Not, Weed High, Wee Surf Echoes, Sunny Nook, Suits Us, Lighted Pine, Coreopsis, Liveoakshade (suggested by Don Blanding's "Carmel-by-the-Sea"), Wildwood, Trail Inn (How did that get inn?), The Better Ole, Window Box, Upside, Green Gate, Magic Casements, The Lark, The Brownie, Green Pines, Woodwild, The Oak Leaf, The Acorn, The Upstairs, Windrush, Rosemary, Butterfly, We Too, Hidden House, Cozy Corner, Stonehearth, Cross Gables, The Barnacle, Little White House, The Farm House, Kittiwake (a variety of Sea Gull). Pine Log is in my first list but was told that the "e" dropped off and for years the name got along nicely as "Pin Log" until finally a new letter was restored. Are there any more names?

POETRY

I KILLED A MAN

I killed a man in No Man's Land
I had not met before;
Save he was from the other camp—
Of him I knew no more.

Say that I fought for motherland.
Say anything you can:
Say I'm a hero, noble, brave
But add—I killed a man.

RULER OF TIDES

Upon the altar of the West
The fires burn low;
Day, trailing robes of amethyst,
Seeks the seraglio of the dawn,
A lone bird dips to seaward
And . . . is gone!

The tarnished hills
That crouched all day
Beneath the inexorable sun,
Don their woad-mantles,
As the moon,
Resplendant in her borrowed
light,
Rises triumphant,
Ruler of Tides,
Enchanter of the Night!

SILVER SHADOWS ON A WORLD OF PEACE

(To the Army Air Forces)

Far above the earth's last song of battle
And the chill-wrapped voice in the throat of death,
Our winged ones leave their painted roosts
To lance the skies.

Far above the blood-splashed fields
And hearts torn
From sun-bleached flesh,
They rivet frosted ears to guiding beam
That they might circle blue fingers
In ragged gloves of cloud.

Far into the dark hinterlands of night,
They dip cold wings in heaven's dew
And far, far—into the warm breath of dawn,
These bold men pause to fill their lungs
With the day-lit air of victory.

And while the last foes lie quivering
In holes of bomb-rocked earth,
Our daring ones cast down silver shadows
On a world of peace.

REVIEWS

OF MEN AND BEASTS

By PHIL NESBITT

In this big-little world, comprised chiefly of all-out extroverts and the rule of might, one gives pause when a gentle soul is perceived. I have perceived one and I shall tell you about him. He lives in solitude by a nearby river, in a ramshackle dwelling place fabricated of drift wood and flotsam cast up by the flowing tide. Once, several years ago he owned a great old Packard car. With this car, bearing himself and I believe his two sons, he came west in quest of better things, from that dust tormented state of Oklahoma. His wife, a woman of pioneer ilk had died. This man . . . I do not know his name . . . is strangely made up of courage, valor of spirit and courtesy. Now, courtesy is a huge thing. It is that spiritual lubricant which makes possible the exchange of thought between understanding persons. His is a being with natural courtesy to mark it. He is tall and weathered, a little like the cypress trees. So far, every one has missed him; however I may be wrong. There may be many persons who recognize, as I believe I do, his essential fine nature.

This man is a hard, hard worker. He is a toiler, a man of earth. He would die on Bond street or Broadway. He represents the real basic Yankee man. It may sound a little foolish to say this man is of Lincoln stature. Yet I recognize the high points of the breed. Lincoln was a courteous man, even to his foes. This man of mine is rough shod, clumsy probably; he'd have a devil of a time holding a Dresden china teacup. His hands are made to grasp a mattock or a musket to defend America's shore from actual invasion.

But that which distinguishes him most noticeably is his self contained manner and gentleness of mind. Despite his strength, one knows that he would walk aside to avoid stepping upon an ant. People are funny creations. They are wrapped up in all kinds of paper and tied with many colored strings. But so few have a true, inner courtesy. It's easy to be polite. Politeness is merely conventional laziness. The Japanese are polite. You know what a little thing their purely protective politeness is.

It might be a good time in History for the creation of a great new symphonic piece of music. One depicting the helplessness of the common people in the face of universal upheaval. Picture the mass wandering in the valley of darkness; yielding up its offspring for sacrifice upon the altar of war. A titanic theme. What the end shall be, no mortal knows, great or small.

The horses and the hogs, the cows and the dogs know there is a war going on. But the deer and the hedge hogs, the mice and the birds are only frightened by the thunder of guns and the blasts of concussion. I pity them. They perhaps wonder why the noise is occurring.

From where I sit I can see a spider web. It's suspended aloft in a ray of sunlight. Across its patterned structure is flowing a lambent rain bow of irridescent color, such as you see when you sprinkle the garden in the setting sun. The owner is doubtless couchant in some dark recess devouring the corpse of his victim, seized because it too, appreciated the play of charming color across the web.

Carmel during these days is like a lady of sixty-five swearing she is only thirty-eight. Carmel has reached its middle years. No longer can it hie behind its little imitation thatch roofed cottages on Ocean avenue. It is but one of the several towns adjacent to a military camp. The bigger mood shall rule and the social, economic and spiritual outcome, in so far as the life and welfare of the village is concerned, will only be revealed in the future.

Hot Cargo Bill and 17 Other Measures Explained by San Francisco Lawyer at League of Women Voters Meet in Monterey

in March the legislature would be back again to change them. Also that it is not wise to do away with a thirty day intermission during which time the constituents now have an opportunity of expressing their feelings on proposed legislation before the legislators act.

Initiative Measure No. 3, supported by the California Medical Association and the public health league, proposing to establish a new board of examiners in basic sciences to be financed by fees for examinations. Proponents: It will not affect existing licenses, or interfere with those who heal by prayers in a recognized religion.

The existing boards will continue and this will serve as a preliminary examination to insure against a let down in standards during the emergency. That sixteen other states already have such a board. Opponents: Sufficient examining boards already exist; also this is an initiative measure and cannot be amended without another initiative.

Initiative 4: Repeal of state personal income tax. For: The federal government needs money more than the state which has a surplus. This will eliminate the state tax deductions from federal tax, affording more revenue for the Federal government. Because California has one of the highest state income tax rates in the nation, wealthy people are discouraged from making their home here.

Against: If there is a surplus in the state treasury, its benefits should be distributed among a wider group of tax payers than those who pay income tax. That repealing this tax would institute a dangerous precedent, as the measure provides that the tax could not be revived except by vote in a general election.

Measure V which provides for increasing the pay of the legislators from $100 to $200 a month is the present wage does not pay their expenses, especially since many of them are away from their home and business for as much as six months on business of state. The opposition states that no raise in pay would be sufficient to compensate a good man for the time he gives as a public service, whereas the raise may attract people to whom public service is not paramount but to whom $200 would be a consideration.

Measure VI. A new board of state forestry of 7 members of rotating terms, one going out of office each year, instead of the present board, appointed by the governor every four years. Its proponents urge that a forest cannot be run on four year lots, also that in providing that the state forester should be appointed by the board, it insures his being responsible to the board. Opponents say the measure is an attempt to break down the civil service, and that the language of the measure is not clear.

Measure VII, concerned with a gradual reduction of tax rate of insurance companies to compensate for elimination of real estate tax exemptions, has no opponents.

Measure VIII, limiting use of funds derived from licenses and fines to specified fish and game purposes (similar to the measure that prohibits the diversion of gas tax money), is now being opposed by some of its sponsors because of the wording of the measure, in stating that the money be confined to use for fish, game, mollusks and crustaceans, may limit it so that it does not take in all the wild life now under protection of the fish and game commission.

Measure IX, providing the legislature should fix the salaries of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, the Controller, Treasurer and Secretary, is urged in that the legislature fixes other salaries, that the present limit of $5000 does not allow for compensation for extra work the legislature often requires of these officers. Opponents point out that there are three other officers who are caught in the fixed salary situation, the governor, the attorney general and the lieutenant governor.

Measure X—Initiative providing for the reorganization of building and loan associations as at present there is no provision for the reorganization of such associations. Opponents feel that there are technical defects in the measure that would work against the stockholders.

Measure XI—Allowing fifteen round boxing matches in the state (at present the matches are limited to twelve), a great embarrassment to California champions when they go to other states, apparently has no opposition.

XII provides that school districts may be stockholders in water company districts. Proponents urge that this power has been given other government units, and in some cases the only way the schools can have water is by holding water stock. The opponents say that the law has been in effect since 1879 and states that the credit of any unit of government cannot be pledged for private purpose and should be rewritten, and that measure XII is simply another of countless exceptions. Others urge that this creates a dangerous precedent in diverting funds of the school districts.

XIII providing for the reorganization of the Board of Equalization which has not been changed since 1879, attempts to provide for the shift of population since that period. It proposes to take the state controller off the board, have a five man board and create five districts, making the city of Los Angeles one district. Opponents say the distributions still would not be equitable, also that the districting system is not good as it results in one man control of each district instead of five man control of all districts.

XIV provides for the reduction of the seven percent interest against judgments to five percent. Proponents: current interest rates are low. There is no excuse for keeping this rate up. Opponents: High interest induces people to pay judgments. The measure amends only the first paragraph. If action is to be taken, the entire measure should be re-written.

XV. Originally sponsored by the state bar association it purported to revise the State Supreme Court so that it would function in a manner similar to the Federal Court, but owing to inaccurate writing of the measure, the original sponsors are now opposing it on the grounds that it is not sufficiently explicit.

XVI. A highly technical measure providing that the legislature may: (a) provide administrative boards whose finding of fact may be conclusive if supported by conclusive evidence, (b) may provide appropriate kinds of judicial review, (c) adjust courts, (d) permit cities to set up such boards. The proponents hold that the present system of appeal from board decisions is demoralizing to the boards. The opponents, lead by the state bar association, do not approve of the granting of independence to city boards, that the law should read that the legislature MUST and not simply MAY provide judicial review, and under the present wording the law may be construed so that the legislature can substitute administrative boards for courts.

XVII. Permits the legislature to set up procedure so that the state treasurer may hold funds in trust as the federal government handles them. Under the present system money once in the treasury cannot be withdrawn except by the legislature or the state controller. In cases where there is the possibility of rebates and refunds, revolving funs, etc., the money is held in departmental bank accounts. The proponents argue that it is safer to have these funds in one lump in the hands of the state treasurer who can place them in time deposits where they will draw interest. There is no opposition at present.

XVIII proposes to place the State Controller on the reapportionment committee in the place of the Surveyor General, a position that no longer exists.

The meeting was preceded by a luncheon served by the Monterey Canteen Unit. Among the routine announcements was the information that on October 6, Miss Rachel Hiller would read a paper at the meeting of the foreign relations section at the home of Mrs. L. O. Kellogg. Mrs. Carl Voss will conduct a study of taxation in November.

Espirit de Corps

The members of the medical detachment at Fort Ord which gave a dance recently at the Art Gallery are among other things good newspapermen. Every Thursday they publish a New Yorkerish tabloid called Espirit de Corps.

It is full of pictures and news that reads like this:

" 'He'll live,' the doctor sigheed after several hours of nerve-wracking waiting, and friends sighed in relief to know that father, Actg. 1st Sge. Carl Sandberg would pull through. His little baby, Myron Soring Sandberg, cried in glee to know that she would not lose a daddy who had worried so much about her."

A late issue of the paper tells of the special commendation by the commanding officer for Capt. Maxwell R. Bernstein, of the detachment and its "top kick," 1st Sgt. Lloyd S. Snyder, for the ingenuity of four of their men, Pvts. Fritz Bosch, Warren Hammer, Yuen Seid and Oscar Evenson, on a recent maneuver. Capt. Bernstein and Sgt. Snyder were those in charge of the Carmel party.

Box Lunch Planned For First Meeting Of Church Group

The Women's Auxiliary of the Church of the Wayfarer will hold its first meeting next Tuesday at the recreation room of the church, Mrs. Grace Howden, presiding.

A group wil meet at 10:30 to make bandages for the organization's leper work.

A program has been arranged for the afternoon meeting.

University Club Speaker Outlines Woman's War Work

Speaking for the Monterey Peninsula Branch of the American Association of University Women at Forest Hill Hotel Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Malbone Graham described how the people of Canada and British Columbia, men, women and children, in this beginning of the fourth year of the war, are united for total service to their country.

Her subject was "The Time Is Now," and she showed how the women of this country can gear all their activities to the national emergency in war. Mrs. Graham has long been a leader in the A.A.U.W. and is now vice-president of the South Pacific section of the organization.

Intelligent and trained women, the speaker said, can lead public opinion to right thinking, to the point that, "everything in total war must contribute to the war," and, as life must go on, every job, however humble, can be a war job. There is need for consumer intelligence and discipline to prevent the monster of inflation, and this is largely in women's hands.

In education, while children must not be taught hatred, there is also the necessity of keeping the sense of human responsibility, of not separating the do'es from the results of his wrong doing. Ways in which women can serve the country are by no means all spectacular; only comparatively few can work for the armed services. Faith in liberty is worth all we do to retain it, for, "Freedom is worth everything else in the world."

The book section for Carmel members of the association will meet on Wednesday evening, October 14, at Miss E. H. Spencer's on Monte Verde near 7th Street.

In the business meeting the members voted a contribution of ten dollars to the community chest and a like amount to the children's clinic in Monterey.

On Sept. 30 a boy arrived for Capt and Mrs. George McCormick.

Immediately following the President's address, Robert Stanton, Peninsula Community Chest president, will respond to his appeal in a two-minute broadcast over KDON.

Dr. Russell Williams examined about 200 children of the Sunset school last week. This is the first time we have been able to secure a doctor and we were very glad.

He was impressed by the high standard of the children's health. We are glad to say that the children of Sunset have had no communicable diseases and very few colds this year.

SEVENTH GRADE STUDIES PACIFIC ISLANDS CULTURE

Our class, Mrs. Jordan's Seventh Grade, is studying about the islands of the Pacific. Some of the girls have made dolls and several of the boys are making salt and flour maps of the islands. Betty Goulart and Shirley Petty are making a large wall map. We paste on the islands as we "discover" them.

—Lou Frost.

Across the shelf in the back of the room dance the South Sea Island belles. Their long yarn hair, gay prints, embroidered faces, bright flowers and necklaces were all put on a foundation of wire, cotton, and silk stockings. We tried to show the effect of the wind and waves on the native dances. —Betty Dougherty.

Tapa, a native cloth, is made from the inner bark of the paper mulberry tree. After the bark is stripped from the trees, it is scraped with a sharp edge of a shell and soaked in water. It is then pounded with a mallet. Folding and pounding goes on until the bark becomes very thin and then it is designed with dyes made from plants and roots.

—Bob Johnson.

Most of the designs made on tapa cloth are geometrical. We are working on designs to be used for block prints. In this way we will decorate the covers for our Social Studies books.

—Becky Bell.

The "drum groves" of the South Sea Islanders are made by topping a group of trees and cutting off all the branches. Slits and sound holes are made in them to get different tones. Some of the drums are from 10 to 12 feet high and some only one foot in diameter. Like all primitive musical instruments, they are carved, usually with faces or heads.

—Nadine Hoeser.

The "toere" is the only kind of drum used in Tahiti. It is made of "to" wood which is very hard. The drums are about two feet long and hollowed out in the middle. The natives use gasoline cans, too, for drums and will give almost anything for one.

—Stephen Brooks.

The origin of the harp is very interesting. In primitive times men used bows and arrows. The twang of the strings caused them to experiment. A branch that could bend easily strung with deer skin thongs made pleasing sounds. This was the far-off relative of our modern harp. —Ray Wermuth.

Did you know that—

Eskimos drill holes in rocks by holding a crude drill between their teeth and pulling a string wrapped around it?

The carabao, water buffalo of the Philippines, prefer a native Indian boy for a driver and will sometimes charge a white man?

The ranchers on the Galapagos Islands off the coast of Ecuador drink coconut juices and wash in salt water? This is because of the scarcity of fresh water.

The natives of the tropical islands of the Pacific aircondition their houses by building them on poles? —Don Stevenson.

Sunset Library has a new set of encyclopedias. They are a great help to us in our Social Studies. There are lots of pictures of the South Seas and interesting reference material. In one book, I found the 1940 population of the different islands. —Paul Baxter.

Sherlie Sousa brought a pair of carabao horns to school. They have crude carvings of houses, plants and animals on them.

—Charis Johns.

Our class would appreciate it very much if any of the readers of the Pine Cone-Cymbal could supply information regarding primitive Alaskan games and music. —Dudley Koontz.

Last week Miss Machado's music classes were moved. Instead of going to Room 15, we will now go to Room 5 just over the lunch room. —Sherlie Sousa.

This year we are having tournaments in handball, table tennis, horse shoes, and badminton. Lee Winslow, Mr. Doerr's seventh grade, won in handball last week. Horse shoes will start soon. We hope more boys will sign up.

—Bob Rissel.

"Our Neighbors to the South," a colored film, showing a trip by automobile through most of South America was shown to the fifth, sixth and seventh grades last Friday. Gay colored costumes, beautiful lakes, Inca ruins, together with a background of Pan-American music made us feel that we were really there.

—Betty Dougherty.

The red "V" went to Mr. Doerr's seventh grade last week. Twenty-three out of thirty pupils bought stamps, meaning their room lead the school in the buying of defense stamps.

—Dick Cox.

WHAT THE SECOND GRADERS ARE DOING

Janet Gorham gave a talk Thursday about why we should buy war stamps. Next Thursday I am going to give a talk about war stamps.

—Dick Yementes, 2nd Grade.

We are collecting lots of seeds, all kinds we can find. We want to see how many kinds we can get.

—Dickie Swanson.

The other day when I was taking a walk with my mother, I saw two little monkeys. One was black and one was brown. They were playing tag around the clothes line.

—Enid Pearson, 2nd Grade.

When I went to the beach, I saw those monkeys in a little house. The house has two little windows. They belong to the shoemaker. He let me come in to see the monkeys.

—Tommy Brosnan, 2nd Grade.

The other day we practiced going to our air-raid shelter. There was a pig who lives there. He was afraid of the big noise of the guns at Fort Ord. He was shivering and got in among the children and let us pet him.

—Jane Bond, 2nd Grade.

Miss Tucker Returning—

Mrs. Leota S. Tucker writes from Washington, D. C. that she will be back in Carmel on November 1. She writes that "it is lovely here, but I prefer Carmel and hard work."

GAME TODAY

Instead of meeting Monterey on October 3 as had been planned, Carmel's footballers will invade the gridiron of the bay city school today at 3:30.

The starters in the game will be: at right end, Jack Fremont; right tackle, Dale Vandervort; right guard, Bill Christierson; center, Del Wilson; left guard, Jason Harbert; left tackle, Roy Parsons; left end, Baird Bardarson; quarterback, Ken Jones; left half, Jim Handley; right half, Don Staniford, and full-back, DeWitt Appleton.

Carmel's first string tackles will be on the bench Friday, due to injuries received in the last Carmel-Monterey game, but Vandervort and Parsons plan to hold up the high standard.

PADRES BEAT WHITES

Carmel Padres hit a new high this weekend by putting the Monterey Whites at the end of a 7-2 score.

Monterey scored two minutes after the kickoff when DeWitt Appleton fumbled a centered ball and was tackled behind the line to give Monterey a safety. This scored their only two points.

The kickoff was again made by Monterey, and as a result of good blocking and tackling, Carmel brought the ball to the opponent's fifteen yard line and six points were made by Left End Baird Bardarson on a pass. The conversion was scored by quarterback Kenny Jones.

From then on, the game was mostly a series of line plays and passes, with both teams fighting it out.

The first string players were full back, Dewitt Appleton; left half back, Jim Handley; right half, Don Staniford; and quarterback, Ken Jones, in the back field. The starting line men were left end, Baird Bardarson; right end, Jack Fremont; left guard, Jason Harbert; right guard and captain, Bill Christierson; left tackle, John Wood; right tackle, John Graham; and center, Del Wilson.

Some other players who were outstanding were Russ Bohlke, Bill Wishart, Roy Parsons, Emile Passailaigue, Milt Thompson, George Moller, Bill McKenzie, Bob Weer, John Weigold, Orville Mead, Dale Vandervort, Bill Plein and Bill Dougherty.

HEALTHY STUDENT BODY

"The students of Carmel all seem to be very healthy," Dr. Russell Williams, school doctor, said when he finished examining the 245 students. The rating was very high except for athletes' foot. There have been only two cases of mumps and a few absences because of colds. The football boys are the only ones so far to have sprained ankles and arms.

—Marjorie Gunn.

ORCHESTRA ORGANIZES

Here we are again, all the students who make up the Carmel High School Orchestra. Over the summer we have lost a few and gained a few valuable musicians, but on the whole we haven't changed very much from when we gathered together for our final time last year.

Mr. Bartlett seems very pleased with our abilities, although he would like a larger violin section

Harry G. Shriner Art To Be Shown Next At the Sketch Box

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Getsinger will present an exhibition of the paintings of the late Harry G. Shriner, Mrs. Getsinger's uncle, at the Sketch Box, commencing Saturday, Oct. 10.

The noted artist painted extensively in the Coachella valley around Palm Springs and the show will include a cross section of his desert pictures as well as a few portraits. Among the latter will be Shriner's painting of white-haired Burroughs "sitting serenely with folded hands" which the poet said was the best portrait ever painted of him.

These paintings were exhibited during the summer at La Jolla and four of them are now being shown at Hotel Del Monte.

The Phil Nesbitt exhibit, closed this week because of Ellen Habenicht's absence, will be reopened Monday for another five days.

Canteen Trailer Finds New Home

The Canteen unit of the Carmel Red Cross Chapter found a new home for its emergency service trailer on Tuesday morning, in the old shop building of the Carmel High school. This building was used last year by the high school while the new shop was being built. It was kept over for emergencies this year, and turned over to the canteen by school superintendent Bardarson on request of the canteen unit. Regular instruction and practice in emergency mass feeding is the program of the unit.

Reactionary? J. J. Can Cope with Public Utilities

To people who call John Jordan a reactionary Republican, he is answering this week that whatever he is, he knows how to cope with public utilities.

Looking over the Republican headquarters in Mrs. Mary L. Dummage's shop on Ocean Avenue, he noted that the newly installed telephone was tagged 324JX.

"Headquarters number," said one of the workers. "Shall I notify the others?"

Jordan picked up the phone and called information. "What is the number for the Republican Headquarters?"

"511," she said. The man who installed the phone had not removed the number of the former subscriber.

Soldier Leads Husband Astray; Wife Calls Police

Acting Chief of Police Les Overhulse is considering adding a Bureau of Domestic Relations to the titles on the official Police Department Stationary, since the calls for assistance in that capacity are frequent.

The latest was from a tearful wife who said her husband had gone off with a soldier and would the police department please find him and bring him home. The police department made the routine check with other police departments on the Peninsula, and then began a scouting search around town which was cut short by another call from the wife saying they could call off the hunt.

"He came home of his own accord."

CD Medical Unit All Town Drill Set for October

An all town drill for the Civilian Defense Medical Unit, similar to the drill Thursday night in Precinct one and four, will be held October 23 for Major A. Matheney of the Regional Office of Civilian Defense in San Francisco.

Thursday night's drill, the first in which all the units of the emergency medical service and the block wardens participated was somewhat slowed by the dim out, as the ambulances, the Nielsen, Dolores Grocery and Vincent Torres' trucks converted for the purpose, couldn't move the patients to the hospital at more than twenty miles an hour.

Members of the motor corps were in charge of the ambulance work for this work-out, but it is the intention of the C.D. to recruit its own drivers and stretcher bearers whom the motor corps have volunteered to train. Mrs. Harriet Rowntree, executive secretary asks those who will volunteer to apply at the C.D. office. The C.D. wants Carmel dentists also for the medical corps as their pre-medical training makes them valuable in first aid work. Drs. Hughes and McCabe participated in Thursday night's drill.

Though this first drill showed up some weaknesses in the functioning of the medical corps, the control center operated better than it has to date.

The work of getting volunteers to act as "victims" was handled by Mrs. Irvin Polken and Mrs. Hugh Comstock.

Red Cross

Graduation exercises for the latest class of Grey Ladies of the Red Cross for Monterey, Salinas and Carmel chapters will take place Sunday in the Recreation Roomof the Station Hospital at Fort Ord. Veils will be presented by Mrs. Lytle. Assistant Field Director and members of the military will be present.

The chairmen of the three chapters are especially invited, as are the fifty Grey Ladies who have been functioning at the station Hospital for a year, and a special program is being arranged. Mrs. Anna Rossi of Salinas is chairman of Fort Ord Ladies Services, including all three chapters, and the individual chapter Grey Ladies chairmen are Mrs. John Gilbert, Carmel; Miss Evelyn Wright, Monterey and Mrs. Ruth Pellett.

On Thursdays, Carmel is in charge of the recreation room and they have been providing classes in silhouette work and sculpture. The two renowned Carmel artists who have generously donated their time and services in conducting these classes are M. de Neale Morgan and Finn Frolich. The classes are attended by convalescents in the hospital who find the work most interesting and some of whom show considerable talent. An amusing figure of a kangaroo "mother and child" was the product of one hour's modeling in clay by Private Henry V. Wineroth and presented to Mrs. W. H. Hargrave, chairman of Carmel chapter's Voluntary Services, who is also one of the Grey Ladies.

New Grey Ladies classes will start about the middle of October for all three chapters in this area.

Graduates are: Mesdames Rachel Morton, W. D. Sayers, M. Terrell Giesting, Howard S. Duff, John H. Neikirk, H. A. Burgers, and Miss Clara Taft.

They Ask Joe to Start a Bus Line And Don't Use It

Joe Olivera, who started a bus line up the Valley in response to requests from people who wanted to save their tires, complains that now they have it they don't use it.

Joe says that if his patronage slackens further, he will eventually have to discontinue the line.

There are three round trips to Robles del Rio daily, leaving Carmel at 7:30 a.m., 12, and 5:30 p.m.
